The corrections profession is experiencing symptoms of inter-generational conflict. Each generation has different expectations and needs in their jobs and careers. To effectively build on the strengths of each generation, we must recognize and understand those differences. Understanding how the generations grew to become who they are, appreciating their differences, and listening to the needs of multi-generational co-workers are the first steps to finding solutions to multi-generational conflict.

Who Should Attend:

Staff who work in corrections, law enforcement and the criminal justice field.

- Identify the generations in the workplace;
- Name the general characteristics of each generation in the workplace;
- Identify the core values and belief systems for each generation;
- Discuss how these traits, core values and beliefs of the generations were molded; and
- Introduce how these generational differences show up in the workplace.
